COMMUNION UNDER BOTH FORMS (BREAD AND WINE)

One of the most beautiful and intimate ways we participate in the Mass is through the reception of Holy Communion, the Body and Blood of our Lord Jesus Christ. The Church's teaching on the celebration of the Mass states that the "meaning" of Communion is most clearly signified when given under both forms – both the Sacred Host and the Precious Blood. Here the imagery and symbolism of receiving the Body and Blood of Christ, of being joined with the Messianic Banquet, becomes most clear. When one receives only the consecrated bread, one truly receives – wholly and entirely – the glorified body and blood, soul and divinity of our Saviour, Jesus Christ. However, the church has given approval to receiving both the consecrated bread and wine because receiving under both forms gives a more complete sign of the "new and everlasting covenant" Christ has established with the Church. The Church teaches that a person who receives under either form has received the entire Christ. The Church also teaches that the decision to receive under both forms belongs to the individual person receiving communion.

Communion under both forms will be offered at weekend masses in St Patrick's Aughaclay from the First Sunday of Advent, 3rd December and in our other churches in due course. All adults and children at secondary school are invited to receive from the chalice.
